

An assessment of excessive tort costs in the Kansas City MSA and Missouri and potential economic benefits of reform

A flawed civil justice system which generates exorbitant levels of damages or numbers of awards and which is unpredictable in its outcomes may result in negative impacts through the misallocation of society’s scarce economic and human resources. Tort reform can lead to substantial economic benefits, and states which have implemented reforms have seen improved judicial efficiency and measurable advancement in economic performance.

All major industry groups are negatively affected, with the retail trade, business services, health services, and other services industries typically experiencing the greatest losses.

Losses due to Excessive Tort Litigation in the State of Missouri

Direct Costs	-$4.9 billion each year
Gross Product	-$7.5 billion each year
State Gov Revenue	-$384.5 million each year
Local Gov Revenue	-$324.6 million each year

Notes:

The economic effects of excessive tort costs take into consideration dynamic multiplier effects. The “tort tax” is defined as the per capita loss of gross product in the area. The Perryman Group quantified the 2023 aggregate excess costs associated with the current system, allocated this amount across states, and examined the resulting downstream effects. Costs were allocated to the Kansas City Metropolitan Statistical Area (Missouri portion only, Bates, Caldwell, Cass, Clay, Clinton, Jackson, Lafayette, Platte, and Ray counties) based on relative legal costs in the area and economic and demographic patterns. Tort reform can reduce or eliminate these costs. Thus, these results may also be viewed as a measure of the benefits of reasonable reform measures.

Excessive tort litigation in the Missouri portion of the Kansas City MSA results in:

-$1.8 billion
in direct costs annually

-$2.7 billion
in gross product annually

-$1.7 billion
in personal income annually

-23,153 jobs

Excess costs result in a “tort tax” of

-$2,069
per person
